

IN OGDEN'S SOCIETY CIRCLES

Mrs. Lydia Boothby, Harpist, to Play At Presbyterian Services on Sunday

Mrs. Lydia Boothby has won an enviable reputation among the musicians of the central west as a harp soloist of merit. Mrs. Boothby is said to excel in the ability of bringing out the sweeter strains of the harp and revealing the melodic powers of the "grand old instrument of the psalmists and kings." Mrs. Boothby will assist the First Presbyterian quartette in the Thanksgiving Praise services Sunday when the following numbers will be given:

Morning Praise at 11.
Harp prelude, "Spring Song," Hasselmann; "Spanish Melodies," Hasselmann; "Legende," Zabel.
Harp offertory, "Priere," Hasselmann; "Legende," Zabel.

MISS JESSIE BEESON HONORED.
Miss Jessie Beeson, daughter of Principal Beeson of the Ogden High school, has been residing in Washington, D. C., for the past summer and in addition to her government work has been studying music under Professor Louis B. Thompson. Mrs. Beeson is also in the capital for the winter.

From the Washington Post is the following article which tells of Miss Beeson's appointment as secretary in a newly organized musical club:

"The newest organization of musicians and quite the most practical from an educational viewpoint, is the Rhapsodist, organized last Thursday evening under the leadership of Louis B. Thompson. The club will give no public performances, and is for the study of musical history, literature and painting, their relations to each other, sight reading, the first principles of theory and harmony and experience in mass singing. Meetings will be held every evening during the season and, owing to limited quarters, the membership is limited, although there are still a few vacancies. At the conclusion of each meeting two of the members will sing solos. Jessie Beeson was elected secretary last Thursday. Mrs. Joseph Stephenson, soprano, and Warren Terrey, tenor, were the soloists at the first meeting.

O. H. S. FOOTBALL BOYS' BANQUETED.
Coach Clarence Douglas and the first team of the Ogden high school football boys were delighted to entertain Saturday evening by Misses Nellie O'Keefe, Annette Cunningham, Hope Fox and Blanche Barton at a five-course dinner at the home of Miss Barton, 774 Twenty-fifth street.

The dining room was prettily decorated with O. H. S. pennants with the 1916 champion football suspended from the chandelier. Orange chrysanthemums adorned the tiny orange and

Child Culture Club Members Hear Interesting Address at Their Thursday Afternoon Meeting

At the regular fortnightly meeting of the Child Culture club held in the University club rooms on Friday afternoon the meeting was presided over by Mrs. H. M. Barrows, president, and the program for the day was in the charge of Mrs. Fred N. Hess. Mrs. Ava Cooper and Mrs. Louise Ford were hostesses.

The topic of the address "Service, the Keynote of the Times," was delivered by the Rev. Geoffrey Matthews of the First Congregational church.

Referring to the fact that many years ago Mr. H. C. Wells wrote a novel entitled "The Food of the Gods," Mr. Matthews said "A great number of us, when we read that novel first wondered what Mr. Wells was trying to say. Perhaps he was only indulging his love for experimental science in recounting a story of how two brilliant young men discovered a substance which could be incorporated into food and which resulted in a larger species of every animal to which the food was given, and how finally the food was given to a child and then to many children with the result that a race of giants arose in the earth and wiped out of existence the race of pygmies who at present inhabit it. What Mr. Wells was getting at, though, in his satiric and brilliant fashion was the plain truth that our humanity has not yet arrived, that it is too irregular, provincial, narrow and incompetent in the face of pressing needs. It is poorly nourished in the mind and heart and has not learned how to travel nimbly along the pathway of great deeds of service which result in blessedness."

"This, too, apart from the satiric quality of Mr. Wells' writing is the statement of the Christian religion. It does not yet appear what we shall be but we shall be like Him" of whom the noble epitaph was written "that life went about doing good. The mission for service has captured the hearts of comparatively few while it is meant to capture the imagination and direct the will of all. The nineteenth century, described as the most wonderful century in the history of the world was the century of the most tremendous development in applied science. Men learned more of how to use the forces of nature in that century than in all preceding times. Many of us hoped that these discoveries would lead to the happier, more contented and useful lives of the great majority of people on the earth, but we were caused to live in the twentieth century and realize how the facts discovered about the great forces of nature could be used for the destruction of all that men hold dear. The nineteenth century made the world a neighborhood, the twentieth is faced with the opportunity of converting that neighborhood into a brotherhood. How shall we set about accomplishing it? Chiefly and firstly by concentrated attention on the significance and value of the child and his education. It is nothing short of a calamity that so many of our educators are carried away with the idea that an education, firstly, is to enable the child to get a living. To shovel information into the mind of a child as though that mind were an empty bucket may, or may not, make the child's life of value to himself and to his community. But to educate the child so that his affections are in the right, his thoughts pure and noble, and his will set toward the achievement of right relations in all the circumstances of his life is to educate him in the only real sense of the word. He should first be taught to become the captain of his soul, and the learning of a trade and the fitting for a life of usefulness will be taken up with greater enthusiasm and more enlightened adeptitude. Parents are face to face with enormous difficulties in the modern world. The school teacher and the teacher of religion can not do for the child what the home, and the home only is meant to do. Parents who used to be concerned about what their children read ought now to be chiefly concerned with what they see and hear. As an instrument of education, for good or ill, the motion picture and the theater have come to stay and I cannot think of any black hand-painted place cards representing each individual player. A pleasant evening was enjoyed and the boys voted the event a complete success. Those present were: Coach Douglas, Captain Lee Richards, George Irwin, Hugh Johnston, Paul Veasy, Alton Skeen, Bernard McNulty, Tom Doney, Floyd Thomas, Francis Hirt, Reid Vowles, Charles Allen, Leonard Fromberg, Jim Brown, Spencer Stone.

Social.
The Misses Leone Wright and Marcella Dinadale entertained their young friends at a social party given at the Wright home, 2329 Van Buren avenue, Wednesday evening, November 19, 1919. The evening was spent in playing cards, also many games and dancing were enjoyed. Misses Myrtle Erickson, Leona Nelson and Mr. Norman Barry were awarded head prizes. The booby prizes were awarded to Miss Lucille Wright and Mr. Dale Addy. At eleven o'clock delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. George Dinadale, Mrs. George F. Wright and Mrs. F. Behling. Invitations were issued to the following:

Misses Aurelia Faulkner, Burna Faulkner, Cella Higgins, Delorus Hokanson, Dorothy Farr, Katherine McFarland, Leona Bingham, Leah Nelson, Lillian Minson, Lucille Wright, Leone Wright, Myrtle Erickson, Marcella Dinadale, Victoria Stanger, Zilpha Ranson; Messrs Archie Chapler, Albert Bartlett, Alvin Hill, Charlie Richards, Gordon Eastman, Clyde Stone, Dale Addy, Glenn Bolman, Horace Lake, Kay Shreeves, Milton Hodges, Norman Berry, Clarence Chandler, Clarmont Obern, Wallace Knight, Walter Harrop, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ticket Committee of Martha Society Ball To Meet Monday.

The double pleasure of enjoying a most delightful evening of dancing and aiding an exceptionally worthy institution was afforded those who attended the Martha society ball last Tuesday in the Berthana. The affair was the opening social event of the season and the lovely Berthana formed a beautiful background for exquisite evening gowns worn by the social elite of the city.

On Monday, the coming week, the various committees of the society with members will hold a business meeting at the home of Mrs. A. P. Bigelow, at her home on Jefferson avenue, when reports of the ticket committee will be given and other important business conducted.

Associated with Mrs. Edmund Orson Watts, president of the society, were the following ladies who were responsible in large measure for the success of the party:

Tickets—Mrs. R. B. Porter.
Publicity—Mrs. E. M. Conroy.
Music and Program—Messdames E. C. Rich, R. E. Bristol, R. B. Porter.
Decorations—Messdames A. P. Bigelow, Guy Johnson, G. L. Becker.
Refreshments—Messdames J. S. Lewis, Ad Kuhn, R. T. Hume, C. S.

Mrs. Arlo L. Anderson

On Wednesday last in the Salt Lake temple, Miss Genevieve Carver, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Carver, of 539 Twenty-second street, became the bride of Arlo L. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Salt Lake residents. The wedding occurred early in the day and in the evening a delightful reception was tendered the young couple at the home of the bride's parents in this city. The rooms of the Carver home were brightly decorated with pink and white roses and carnations and the scheme was perfectly carried out in every detail, even the refreshments which were so nicely served being, so far as possible, carried out in the same colors. Potted plants and ferns were also prettily arranged throughout the home. In the parlor, where the bridal party stood and where Mrs. Carver and her daughters received the guests, the pink and white flowers were profuse and especially arranged. The bride was daintily gowned as was her bridesmaid, Miss Viva Elton of Salt Lake City. Mr. Anderson was attended by his brother, Ferrell Anderson, of Salt Lake City. The Reeves orchestra furnished dance music during the evening. During the evening over 150 guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Carver and their daughters, Mrs. J. McCament, Mrs. Dave Davis, Mrs. Josse Carver and Mrs. Parley Carver. Presiding at the punch booth were the Misses Luella McCament, Maurine Anderson, Mildred Barnes and Helen Carver. These young ladies were all very prettily dressed.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are well known in Ogden and not a few choice gifts were received by the happy pair. They are to make their home in Blackfoot, Idaho, for the winter and will be at home early in December.

Party Being Planned for Ex-Service Men Will Be Fine Affair.

In the very near future the Women of American Patriots' organization of this city now under the name "The Service Star Legion" will give a dancing party which will commemorate the event of last February 14, St. Valentine's day, when the ladies entertained hundreds of service men and their relatives at one of the largest and most enjoyable affairs ever given in the city and which will be long remembered as it was the first party given for soldiers and sailors following the signing of the armistice and the lessening of the influenza epidemic.

The Berthana will again be secured and as nearly as possible the party will be a repetition of the one in February. Special committees will have been appointed during the week and plans will be perfected for a thoroughly entertaining event.

MACHINIST'S BALL.
The twenty-second annual ball of the International Association of Machinists Local 127, will be given in the Berthana on Thanksgiving eve, November 26, and a good time is anticipated. It is expected that a very large number of the members and their ladies will be present in addition to the many friends.
